SITE FOR SUBSTATION.

Senator Martin yesterday introduced a bill to provide for the erection of a substation by the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad Company at Seventh and O streets southwest Washington. Mr. Carlin introduced the same bill in the House. The measure also repeals the act of February 28, 1903, under which the railroad and District authorities have been squabbling for more than a year in an effort to locate the substation in the southwest section of the city. Senator Martin's bill provides that work shall be begun on the structure within thirty days after its passage, and that it shall be completed within four months thereafter. The location is designated on the District map as the south of square 463. The plans of the station shall be subject to the approval of the District of Columbia commissioners, and the structure is to be erected under their supervision. In addition to a ticket office, accommodations for the handling of baggage are to be installed.

The steamer Norfolk, which left this port early Thursday night, did not reach Norfolk until about 12 o'clock last night. Is it always fast or slow? Never quite on time. Perhaps the watch is capable of very accurate running but it is not in perfect order. You know the tiny mechanism of a watch absolutely demands that each of the dozens of little parts—springs, wheels, jewels, etc.—be just right, or good timing is out of the question.
